
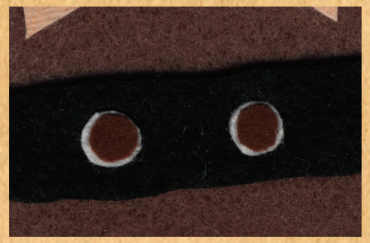
Finally, a bestiary devoted to East Tennessee!

The Poison Pie Publishing House is proud to announce a new illustrated book, A Bestiary of East Tennessee. The naturalist, M. Anxo, presents an encyclopedia of the creatures, mundane and exotic, dwelling in East Tennessee, illustrated in felt by the Keffer family. This book combines a love for felt fingerpuppets, the wild places of Tennessee and books about monsters! This bestiary covers a wide range of creatures, from the Tennessee state animal, the raccoon, to the angelic denizens of the famed Bible Belt.



The Keffers are a family living in East Tennessee. For this book, they traveled to wild places and took pictures. On rainy days, they made felt fingerpuppets. In between they dreamt up a story and combined them all together in this illustrated book.
